

User Groups and User Management

Every user who have already registered on your site is assigned a specific role when their account is created. phpFox comes with a user group management setting that allow Admin to defines what a user can and can't do on your website, create a custom user group, browse new/inactive/cancelled users and more.

Managing user roles and permissions are important when your phpFox site grows. In this guide, we'll go in depth into User Groups and User Management, so you can better manage your site.
